There seems to be an impression that the Japanese Artillery is better than the Rus. sian, and it has even been spoken of as the finest in the world. This is absurd. In all respects save one, the Japanese field-guns era inferior to the Russian. They have a shorter range, their projectiles are lighter; threm. Their one claim to superiority is the high explosive used in the common shall. The Battle of the Talu is, perhaps, responsible for the extravagant estimate of their value. But it must be borne in mind that, in the bombardment of April 30, it was howitzers and not field guns that wrought havoe with the Russian positions, and that on May I the Russian guns fired only six shots. The Japaneso. are a practical people, and saknowledge their interiority in this arm. trial In the Japanese Army there are nineteen regiments of Artillery, each under a Colonel. Five of these are mountain and 14 field, and their combined strength is 114 batteries of 684 guns. Each battery is armed with the seven-and-half centimetre steel gun made at the Osaka Areenal. Field and mountain guns are of the same calibre and take the same shell, though the difference in length, charge, and range is considerable. The tangent-sight of the field guns is graduated up to metres, and that of the mountain gun to metres. The projectile of each gun weighs about eleven pounds, and the gens are not quick-firere, though the recoil is reduced to a minimum by means of drag-shoes under each wheel. The time-fuse in field and mountain guns can be set up to a range of 4800 metres, the ammunition is not 'fixed,' but the cartridges are contained in brass cases, with percussion caps in the base. So much for the gun, which may be described as inferior -except as to the time-fure-to the Horse Artillery twelve-pounder used by us in South Africa at the beginning of the War, and far inferior to the 15-pounder field

The nobility of the Field Artillery is seriously affected by the inferior quality of the draught horses. As we saw on July 31, one Division was able to bring into action only thirteen field guns, notwithstanding the use of double teams. The horses are small and badly trained, and the march of the Artillery in mountainous country is slow. These defects in material are not altogether neutralized by the skill and coolness of the gunners, who handle their guns with the utmost confidence, and are clever in selection a target as well as in aiming and laying their guns. In the use of common shell, the Japanese have departed from the usual practice of European Artillery. There have, it is true, been occasions when they were forced to employ common shell instead of shrapnei, because of the limitations of the time fuse. But expe Particulars and Conditions of the Letting rience in Manchuria, as in South Africa, has shown that the effect of shrapnel is overestimated, and that common shell with an explosive as powerful as that invented by One Lot of CROWN LAND near the Japanese is often more destructive. Hok Un in the Colony of Hongkong, even under conditions that would suggest for a term of 75 years, commending shrapnel to an European gunner. At the Battle of the Yalu the combination of com-Crown Redt to be fixed by the Sur- mon shell with shrapped proved irresistible veyor of His Majesty the Kino, for one against trenches, and troops scatterred as well as massed. In the opinion of men qualified to pass judgment, we ought to pay more attention to the use of common shell. and to the advisability of a proportion of such shells to our field Battery equipment. Surely the invention of a high explosive adaptable to feld guns ought not to be beyond the genius of some of our experts; On the other hand, the Japanese might learn from us the advantage of indirect laying, of telescopic sights, of avoiding skyline positions, of not always waiting for the enemy's fire, and of moving their guns in action so as to give the Infantry their full support critical moments of attack. Many censures have been passed on the Japanese Cavalry. It is only fair to admit that these judgments are based on observation of a few isolated units. No foreign Attache and no foreign Correspondent has seen even a troop of Cavalry in action or on the 17th November, 1904, commencing at Patrol. This is not a sountry for Cavalry, as the Cossacks have found. In the absence of dvidence to the contrary, it is impossible to avoid the conclusion that the Japanese Cavalry horse, like the Artillery horse, is VALUABLE HOUSEHOLD poor and west and built respect, that his equipment is not made on scientific principles, and that the Japanese are back horsemen and surse horse masters. Most of the horses that we see are stallions, and are noisy and disorderly; the middles are ill-fitting, and are often on the withers VERY BIRE EXPENSION DINING TABLE Of the horse; the seat of the rider is not well belamond, the curb and enathe are in-Dd Diseas Wannow, Tues Campers, constant use, even at a walker The result of these defects is a very large percentage of saddle galls and fistulous withers.

At Chonju the Russians had a big force of Cavalry, yet they did not even attempt to reconnected.

Whatever may be my private opinion of the Japanese horse and his rider, I am sure that when a real occasion presents itself there will be no lack of daring. The Japanose Cavalrymen are very skilful awordsmen, but they are wise enough to recognise that the rifle, or even the carbine, is a more trustworthy weapon than the lance or the sabre. As to the Russian use of the lance, the circumstantial report of a French Correspondent, describing the annihilation of a Japanese squadron by the lances of Cossacks, is a pure invention. No incident of the kind has happened. Only two Russian European Regiments carry the lance, except on parade, and even they appear to have left it carefully at home, for not a single lance has been seen save in fact, the only regiment that ever carries the lance in Asia is the Cossack regiment in Turkestan. However deeply regretted by Lancor and Hussar, this picturesque weapon may be relegated to the museum of Military antiquities, and take its place by the side of the jingsl and the halberd.

FISHERMAN ATTACKED BY A FURIOUS BIRD.

A Remarkable Incident.

One is somehow reminded of the 'Arabian', Nights' by the story told of an old fisherman at Cruden Bay, which is near Aherdeen. He has just had a struggle with a roc-or, rather, with a huge bird belonging to the species which ornithologists have christened the great northern diver. Having profited by association with a genie some years ago, the old man became possessor of his own small boat, in which it is his custom to make solitary fishing expeditions. The other day (the genie having overlooked his need of the customary jar of jewels) he was fishing about half a mile out, in some He began when his catch made a great commotion, and just as he had almost got it aboard a large bird shot up out of the water into his face. So furious was the one sught that the old man was nearly knocked overboard, and at first could do little more than defend himself. In one of the dashes the bird split the back of his hand open, and in another it struck him above the eye with its beak, infleting a wound two inches long and laying bere the bone. The furious hird made no attempt to escape, but whirled round, striking viciously at the man's face and eyes. It continued its attack till at last he managed to strike it a lucky blow with a boat strotcher. which broke a wing. He was then able to despatch it with comparatively little difficulty. The fisherman, who was bleeding profusely, had to have four stitches put into the wound on his forebead. The bird measured over three feet from tip to tip, and on being dissected was found to have awallowed a small a hiting, along with the hook, the wriggling of the fish having probably caught the keen eye of the diver, which must have gone twenty feet under water to seize its prey.

-But at this point it was seen that day was breaking, and Scheherazade reserved the conclusion of the story for snother night.'-Home paper, October 7th.

> MANILA CARLENEWS SERVICE. PAILURE OF JAPS AT PORT ARTHUR.

Forced to Evacuate Positions.

SAN FRANCISCO, November 6. The six day attack upon Port Arthur has failed.

The group of forts captured on November 3 have been subjected to such a raking fire within the past twenty four hours that the position became untenable and has been abandoned by the Japanese. The Japanese experience with these forts was most coatly. The loss of life on the part of the retreat late last night, was appalling.

The Japanese have been driven from all vantage ground surrounding the natural basin in which Port Arthur is situated, and the present attack has been a failure for the besieging army,

The Japanese have practically given over the hope of taking the city by storm, but will continue to draw the Russian fite in the hope of exhausting their supply of ammunition.

The former pressure has been relaxed and other factors, among which are the shortage of provisions and water, will be relied upon to secure the capitulation of the

These, however, are the figures given by the Japanese, and unbiased military opinion place the Japanese losses much higher. there are not wanting heavy betters who Cautious European journals contend that Japan has lost at least fifty thousand men, in killed, since the desperate assault on Port Arthur began.

The present army of investment is very near the one hundred thousand mark. It was near this at the beginning of the siege, and Japan has sent several thousand to Port Arthur weekly since last May.

The dreadful assaults of the past four days has greatly enlarged the Japanese death-list.

The Attack Renewed.

SAN FRANCISCO, November 8. The Japanese have again renewed the assault against the outlying defences of Port Arthur, with the result the Wantai Hill has been taken.

This will give a vantage from which many of the forts that were recaptured by the Russians on Saturday will again fall into the hands of the Japanese. Already several large naval guns have been mounted on the fallen fort and a storm of shot and shell is now pouring upon the enemy from that position. The Russian response is incessant and shows no attempt to economiss in munitions of war.

ROYAL HENLEY WEEK.

THE MOST FAHOUS OF REGITTAS.

TOT to know Henley argues one's self unknown in the Rowing world. No aquatio event since Noah set sail in the Ark interests so many people as the great July week at Henley. The famous Regatta Course is lined with Houseboats visited by all that are famous and fashionable, races themselves ettract caramen from all the world, from Yele to Parrametta.

RACE BOATS AND HOUSE BOATS. A racing boat, with its thin mahogany planks, its wide outriguers a d sliding scate, designed to give the long, long pull which spells victory in the race, are veritab's works of art. So in their way, are the Househoats which wealthy families use as Summer Homes, reating here a week, there a month or more, on the Banks of the Thames. And most of all in Regatta week they congregate at Henley.

A Henley House Boat.

These facts give special interest to the Taishan, for Newchwang. words of a Henley man, Mr Charles Sar- Indravelli, for Shanghai. ney, in a local paper. Four years ago Fallodon Hall, for Bangkok. when he was lying helpluss in Reading Hospital with paralysis and spinal disease, Mr Sarney thought he would never be able | Diomed, for Shanghai. to handle oar or scull again. For the hospital authorities told him he was incurable, and sent for his friends to take him away. "But," said Mr Sarney (whose home is at Royal Oak Cottage, Gray's read, Henley), I read in a newspaper of a man, afflicted Mrs C. Hatfield, Miss Bishop, Mrs Schinst like myself, who had been completely re- and child, Messrs Marshall, Daniels, stored to health by Dr Williams' pink pills | Milder, Peterson, Harper, Nolte, Sherman, for pale people."

triend. Mr Sarney did try them, and their effect was extraordinary. Before he had finished table with the aid of a stick. This was Mesars A. Wortmann, C. E. Ellis, Mair. amazed to see him out, and asked him what S. Yegami, Jascio, Nagawa, Kawaguchi work, after nincteen months without doing Briggs Nalutome. a single stroke.

This is a remarkable cure, but there is no difficulty in explaining it. Paralysis is a disease of the nervous system. It is a sign that the nerves are ill-nourished. The food of the nerves is blood. Dr Williams' pink pills for pale people make new blood. Ordicary medicine could not cure Mr Sarney: Reading Hospital was perfectly right in sending him away as incurable by ordinary medicine. Dr Williams' pink pills have cured thousands of persons whom erdinary medicine could not benefit, because ordinary medicine does not make new blood. Any ailment that arises from | For MACAO. lack of blood, or from poisoned, impure blood, as anomia, skin diseases, eczema, chronic prysipelas, rheumatism, gout, can be speedily cured by Dr Williams' pink pills; and disorders arising indirectly from lack of blood, as neuralgia, spinal disease, indigestion and bile (which are caused by the blood not being able to absorb food from the stomach) can be cured in the same way. But it must be the genuine Dr Williams' pink pills for pale people that are taken-not a substitute. Genuine pills bear the full name. Dr Williams' medicine company, Holbern-visduct, London, will, send a bottle post free for two and ninepence (or six for thirteen and nine); but they can be had at all medicine shops if you insist on the genuine.
